Cancer changes everything. We can help.

Who we are

CancerCare provides free help to anyone affected by cancer. Our services include counseling, education, and practical and financial help from trained oncology social workers completely free of charge.

Who we help

People with cancer, caregivers, children, loved ones, and those who have lost a loved one to cancer. Doctors, nurses and other health care professionals use our services, too, to help their patients who are coping with cancer.

How we help

Counseling

Our staff of trained social workers meet with you or your family members one-on-one, to help you find ways to cope with cancer. This individual counseling can take place in person or over the phone.

Our support groups give you a safe, supportive place to share your experiences and learn from others going through similar circumstances. Groups meet in person, over the phone, and online.

Education

Our free booklets and fact sheets give up-to-date, easy-to-read information about subjects like the latest treatments, how to manage side effects, and how to cope with cancer.

Our Telephone Education Workshops give you the latest information on cancer and related topics straight from the experts. Listen in by phone, and even get a chance to ask the experts your own questions.

Practical Help

Our social workers also help with the practical concerns of cancer, such as how to talk with your health care team, how to find useful information and other help, and going back to work after treatment is done.

Financial Help

Cancer can put a big strain on your finances. CancerCare gives limited aid to eligible individuals to help cover cancer-related costs like getting to and from your doctor, child care, help needed around the home, and some medicines that treat side effects.

About CancerCare®

(over)

Who does CancerCare help?

We help anyone who is affected by cancer, including:

- People of any age with cancer
- People who take care of someone with cancer
- People who have completed treatment for cancer
- Children who have a parent, sibling, or other family member with cancer
- Parents who have a child with cancer

Our services are also available in Spanish.

Are CancerCare's services really free?

Yes. Our counseling, education, and practical help services are provided free of charge to anyone who comes to us for assistance. Financial help is available to those who qualify.

How do I contact CancerCare?

Call us toll free at 1-800-813-HOPE (4673) or email info@cancercare.org. You can also visit our website, www.cancercare.org, to learn more about how we help.

CancerCare Can Help

A cancer diagnosis changes everything, but you don't have to go through it alone. While your health care team, friends and family will likely be your main source of support at this time, CancerCare is here to help, too. We will work with you and your loved ones to help you find ways of coping with the many challenges of cancer.
