

SOURCES OF FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

The financial costs associated with cancer are often overwhelming. It's best to start researching your options before a financial crisis develops. Here are some additional sources of financial assistance available to people with cancer (check with each agency or organization to see if you qualify for help):

Government Assistance
Federal and state programs that provide financial benefits to individuals and families, known as entitlements, are primarily set up for low-income households, the elderly and the disabled. Each entitlement has eligibility requirements.

U.S. Department of Health & Human Services
Check phonebook for your local office, or visit www.hhs.gov.

U.S. Administration on Aging

Pharmaceutical Patient Assistance Programs
Programs and services offered differ among drug manufacturers but may include: help with insurance reimbursement; referrals to co-pay relief programs; help with the application process; and discounted or free medications for patients who do not qualify for other assistance. The Medicine Assistance Tool (MAT), www.medicineassistancetool.org, is a free search engine for financial assistance programs.

Nonprofit Programs for Co-Pay Relief
A number of nonprofit organizations provide help for expenses such as co-payments, deductibles and other costs.

"I wanted to take the time to personally express my deepest gratitude and blessings to CancerCare Foundation for your continued support and financial assistance over the years. Without organizations like CancerCare individuals like me would not have the opportunity to live full and worry-free life, wondering how we are going to pay for high priced must needed prescription medications."
-TS

"I am so grateful and thankful for your help at this critical time in my life. There are no words that fully describe the deep appreciation I feel for your foundation and the hope that it inspires in me and, I believe, in all patients that you touch."
- MB

"I cannot find the words to adequately express my gratitude for your financial assistance. Because of you, I was able to obtain my chemotherapy and have a huge financial burden lifted. Your foundation is so needed and very appreciated by myself and so many other people going through this horrible disease called cancer."
- JL

"I wish to thank you for your financial assistance. With your help I will be able to continue living a normal life, I am very grateful!"

CancerCare® Co-Payment Assistance Foundation

Dear applicant,

Thank you for applying with CancerCare Co-payment Assistance Foundation! Here at CancerCare Co-pay we are dedicated to helping patients overcome barriers in order to access treatments as prescribed to manage their disease. Barriers to access are often associated with cost; however, other barriers can include the physical, emotional and practical concerns many patients have when they are diagnosed with cancer. CancerCare's programs & services can provide patients and their caregivers with the tools and information they need to better understand their diagnosis, treatment options and make better treatment related decisions regarding their health. I encourage you to take advantage of CancerCare's other vital services. Please take the time to consider what CancerCare can do to further assist you on your journey towards treatment and recovery. All our services are available free of charge to anyone affected by cancer, including people with cancer, caregivers, loved ones and the bereaved. Cancer changes everything. CancerCare can help.
